Johnson Controls once again recognises Westfalen Group as a top supplier

The Westfalen Group has recently been honoured as a top supplier by Johnson Controls in Seville. The family-owned company from Münster received the bronze "Supplier Execution Award". Westfalen has supplied refrigerants and technical gases for the operation and service of refrigeration systems to various Johnson Controls European locations for almost two decades. The jury commended the Westfalen Group's good performance in the categories of quality, delivery reliability and sustainability. Westfalen was named a top supplier for sustainability by Johnson Controls two years ago.

"It is an honour for us to be recognised once again by our long-standing business partner," said a delighted Norbert Klostermann, Key Account Manager International in the Gases Europe Division of the Westfalen Group. "The award will spur us to maintain our performance standards in customer service and sustainability."

With 2,000 locations in more than 150 countries, Johnson Controls is a leading provider of equipment, control systems and services for heating, ventilation, air conditioning, cooling and security systems. Johnson

Controls' products, services and solutions help more than a million customers achieve greater energy efficiency and lower operating costs in buildings.

The Westfalen Group is represented in Germany and six other European countries with its Gases Europe Division. The Münster-based company produces and sells around 300 gases and gas mixtures for almost all applications in industry and trade, food production, laboratories and medicine. Refrigerants and heat carriers for cooling and air-conditioning technology round off the delivery range.
